If I were the judge, that very confession would cause me to cut his sentence right in two. I admire the manliness of the man in the victory he achieved over sin and self in his heroic struggle through the dark night before his confession

Tragedies like this nerve my arm anew and strengthen my heart afresh to strike more staggering blows at the hellish, infamous, Godforsaken, crime-producing liquor traffic. And this particular circumstance makes me resolve all the more to do my pest to nail a hide on every door in New Jersey next Sunday afternoon, when I preach on "Booze, or Get on the Wagon."

Benjamin Goodman, charged with insulting girls who called at his apartments, 301 West 144th Street, answering his advertisement for a house-keeper, was discharged last night by Magistrate Nolan, on condition that he leave the city before Tuesday.

He took the stand in his own behalf and offered to tell everything necessary, but asked leniency because he was engaged to the daughter of a prominent physician of the city. He said that he preferred to take the pensity, if possible, instead of airing the whole business. Goodman's attorney, Joseph Edelson, then said that his client stood ready to leave for Alaska immediately if released.

Magistrate Nolan answered that as Goodman had not attempted to perjure himself on the stand, and as he seemed to have a good character in spite of this arrest, he would make the sentence light.

AUTO PAYROLL Elopers, Won by Spring Beauty of Bride's Country Estate, Cancel Trip to Europe-Parents Relent, Says Husband.

Pleasantville, N. Y., April 30.—Donald Shields Andrews, who gave up a diploma at Yale to marry Mrs. Alma Vetsera Hayne last Saturday, will not sail for Europe with his bride on the Lusitania to-morrow. Right after a sleepy justice of the peace performed the midnight marriage ceremony at Mamaroneck, N. Y., the elopers came here to Mrs. Andrews's country estate, three miles on the Hard Scrabble road to Chapmagua. "No, we're not sailing on the Lusi-tania to-morrow. That's all bunk. We don't know what we are going to do, do we dear?" directing the conversa-tion to his bride.

It Is Something You we Your Country

ID IT EVER occur to you that you may owe something more to your country than mere loyalty, allegiance and patriotism?

You have a duty to perform right in your own neighborhood. This duty is steadily to maintain the dignity of your position as a citizen, to set a good example to those about you.

For this reason it is not stretching the point one whit to say that your going to church is part of your duty to your country.

Going to church on Sunday for one service may seem like a little thingbut its importance is great, not only in the good it is going to do for you (for the worst enemy of the church cannot claim that going to the services does you harm) but in the example you set to your fellow men as a churchman.

This country needs steady-going men, churchmen, who can give up at least one hour each week to worship.

This country needs such men because of their good influence, the example they set to the younger citizens in every community.

Start in this Sunday and help yourself -your fellow men-and your country. Make up your mind to-day.
